Foreword

ISO (the International Organization for Standardization) is a worldwide federation of national standards bodies (ISO member bodies). The work of preparing International Standards is normally carried out through ISO technical committees. Each member body interested in a subject for which a technical committee has been established has the right to be represented on that committee. International organizations, governmental and non-governmental, in liaison with ISO, also take part in the work.

Draft International Standards adopted by the technical committees are circulated to the member bodies for approval before their acceptance as International Standards by the ISO Council. They are approved in accordance with ISO procedures requiring at least 75 % approval by the member bodies voting.

International Standard ISO 7330 was prepared by Technical Committee ISO/TC 42, Photography.

Users should note that all International Standards undergo revision from time to time and that any reference made herein to any other International Standard implies its latest edition, unless otherwise stated.

The International Organization for Standardization calls attention to the fact that it is claimed that compliance with this International Standard may require the use of an invention covered by patent rights owned by Eastman Kodak Company. The International Organization for Standardization takes no position with respect to the validity of this claim or of any patent rights in connection therewith. The patent owner has assured the International Organization for Standardization that he is willing to grant a licence under these rights on reasonable and non-discriminatory terms and conditions to applicants desiring to obtain such a licence. The patent holder's undertakings in this respect are being placed on file with the International Organization for Standardization and licence details may be obtained from Eastman Kodak Company, whose address is :
